PEOPLE WHO FAVOR QUINN SUNDAY LAW

Governor Carter Gives a Hearing to Those Who Advocate More Liberal Conditions in the Territory.

"We represent twenty thousand people in this Territory," said Father Valentin to Governor Carter yesterday, "and I don't believe one of them will oppose the Quinn bill, which the Bishop has approved."

There was a large crowd present in the Governor's office and the ante room yesterday morning, when the hour came for the demonstration that was to mark the hearing given to friends of the Quinn Sunday law. Governor Carter had asked that an attempt be made to impress him rather by argument than by numbers, and he was given both. The meeting was, in fact, a little more numerous than that of the opponents of the law had been, and the arguments for the Quinn bill had equally emphatic presentation to that given those against it.

Among those present were noted: A. G. M. Robertson, F. Waldron, J. A. Hughes, C. L. Beale, Ed. McNerny, James Cooke, Chas. Bellina, George Lycurgus, Frank Thompson, I. Livingston, E. I. Spalding, George Markham, Oswald Luttet, E. Buffendeau, Wm. England, Robt. Rycroft, A. Hocking, Q. H. Berrey, Antone Seabury, F. M. Lewis, August Dreier, Guy Owens, Emile Dreier, Robt. Shingle, P. O'Sullivan, Senator L. L. McCandless, F. E. Richardson, W. C. Parke, Herbert Mossman, J. W. Akana, Thos. K. Pa. Charles Mann, Chas. Lambert, James Williams, Herbert B. Gares, James Stewart, Ed. H. F. Wolters, Charles Herrick, William Smith, Clark Biggs, George Smith, Al. Moore, G. Maloney, Lau Yin, Chas. Hickey John Bright, C. S. Edison, C. Thelen, A. G. Cabral, M. Brash, C. L. Rhodes, L. Schwitzer, W. Lanze, M. Phillips, Oscar Anderson, Thos. Cahalan, Max Speckman, A. G. Gentin, E. Piedvecke, William Roe, Patrick Ryan, H. Milton Ayres, Father Valentin, A. V. Gear, Capt. A. L. Soule, Ed. McCordiston, J. McClain, Ollie Sorenson, David Hanalei.

OPENS THE MEETING.

The matter of the Quinn bill was presented to the Governor's consideration by Mr. McNerny as follows:

"Your Excellency: The business which brings us here this morning, can in a sense be said to have been precipitated by no less a personage than yourself. With the recent change in the personnel of the Police Department came the enforcement of our existing Sunday law, and if we are to believe what we read in our daily news journals, this enforcement was approved, if not authorized by you, on the ground that a Sunday law that was open to any construction as to the enforcement or otherwise of its terms, by the mere whim of caprice, of whoever might be filling the position of High Sheriff of this Territory at the time, was unsatisfactory.

"Also that the best way to secure such Sunday laws as would best suit the people was to enforce those that were objectionable, and in this way compel the enactment of suitable laws. This I submit your excellency is exactly what has been done, and we are here today to ask your respectful consideration of a law, framed by a son of labor, and approved by the representatives of the people in legislature assembled.—The Quinn Bill. My position in this matter is that of a practical business man.

"I submit your excellency that any law that permits the enforcement or ignoring of its terms, as the mood suits any individual is unsatisfactory and dangerous and a perpetual source of irritation.

"I submit that our isolated position, our peculiar and cosmopolitan population with their various beliefs, religions and practices, require a consideration in applying our Sunday laws, not equalled in any part of the mainland.

"I believe and insist that the divine worship of God, by all creeds and sects, should be protected and respected, but I also believe that that part of Sunday not set apart for the worship of God, should be left free to the individual to enjoy as he sees fit, provided always that he does not so conduct himself as to become a nuisance as the term applies to our every day life.

NECESSARIES OF LIFE.

"I believe that the necessities of life should be sold on Sunday, within prescribed hours and that some of the luxuries, such as fruits, ices, aerated waters and cigars should be available all day.

"I believe that our ever increasing commerce should be fostered to the end that vessels arriving in port on Sunday should be facilitated in their despatch, and permitted to secure their necessary requirements without hindrance.

"I believe that outdoor sports where they do not conflict with the hours of worship should be permitted and fostered, and more particularly if they tend to entertain the tourists who are being brought here at great expense of time and money. Referring specifically to baseball I submit that it is a moral, edifying and amusing game, and as it is scientifically played is at present denied to nine-tenths of our population, whose daily grind begins at 7 o'clock on Monday morning and ends at 9 o'clock on Saturday night. Baseball on Sunday is to be seen in Honolulu wherever a vacant lot is to be found played by gamins or juveniles. But baseball as the national game is played where quality not quantity is required, where the brain-weary business man, can find relief from the cares of the week, and the laborer rest, in recreation, for his tired muscles, can only be obtained where the contestants require to charge some fee, to defray necessary expenses of field and apparatus, and a guarantee that any element inclined to be bawdy could be excluded. As an employer of men I maintain that if baseball on Sunday or any other manly outdoor sports, fee or no fee, will quicken their steps, brighten their eye and clear the brain for their week's work, I will leave no stone unturned to help secure it for them.

"Your excellency I don't desire to burden you further with this, but I want to plead with you for a rational Sunday, such as I believe the Quinn bill provides. Two years is not a long period of time and I favor giving the law and the people a trial."

THE MODERN TENDENCY.

McNerny called upon George W. Smith, president of the Merchants' Association, who spoke for the bill. He said that the modern tendency was in favor of more liberal Sunday laws. He had the highest respect for the gentlemen who had opposed the new law in the last meeting on the subject, but did not think that they were in contact with the whole people, including laborers, as much as some of those present this morning. If there were a referendum, said Smith, the vote of the people would be overwhelming in favor of the new law.

"Steamers load and ply to and from Sunday," said John Hughes, the next speaker. "Railways and street cars are operated. Plantations and other large concerns keep going all over this land. Why should not the laboring man, the mechanic and the clerk have a few hours on Sunday afternoon for innocent recreation? I am opposed to this bill if it interferes with the rights of the humblest citizen to spend Sunday how and in what manner he pleases, if it makes the hours of labor longer, if it will tend to lower the standard of morality or give a bad example to our children."

Fred W. Macfarlane spoke on similar lines. He said that the law now on the statute books if enforced would be a hardship to all. Frank Thompson supported the Quinn bill, saying that it was a happy medium between extreme views of the Sabbath question. W. C. Roe presented a resolution unanimously adopted by the employees of the Honolulu Iron Works in favor of the Quinn law.

A. Hocking spoke for the new law, saying the old law had been satisfactory only so long as it had not been enforced. T. Cahalan, representing local labor organizations, said they were unanimous in favor of the new law.

Father Valentin next spoke. He said he did not like to oppose what other ministers had supported. There were at least half a dozen reverends at the last meeting, but he was the only one here. He was glad to state his position in favor of the Quinn law, with the consent of Bishop Libet.

George Markham was the last speaker. He wanted the governor to secure a permanent place in history by signing the new law.

Governor Carter addressed the gathering on somewhat similar lines as he spoke to the previous meeting stating that he would study the matter and that his action would be with a view to the best interests of the whole community. He thanked those present for their expressions of views, and said he always liked to see such demonstrations, showing an interest in public affairs that was creditable to the citizens of the community. The governor expressed himself emphatically in favor of enforcing the laws as they exist, saying that he did not make the laws, but that it was his duty to carry them out.

THE AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE.

The Standard Telephone Company's bill for a franchise to install an automatic telephone system on the island of Oahu has passed third reading in the House of Representatives, and now goes up to the Senate. The automatic telephone is the latest development in telephones, the cut herewith showing the instrument at work. The automatic is in extensive use on the mainland, and has given absolute satisfaction. It does away with the Central and its annoyances, and is absolutely secret.

The apparatus consists of a revolving dial three and one-half inches in diameter, located as shown in the illustration, at the right hand edge of which are ten rings or finger holes, numbered from bottom to top "1" to "0". Below this wheel is a button which rings the bell of the party called, after the number has been worked out on the dial just as the numbers are worked out in opening a combination lock safe. The numbers are worked down on the dial by inserting the finger in the rings at the numbers desired and pulling down until the stop is reached. If the subscriber wanted is busy, there is a buzzing noise and no bother. If he is not, his bell is rung directly and you get your connection without the bother of awaiting the whim of Central.
